

Your North is My North is
Our North
North³

Canada

Learning about northern communities and communicating northern viewpoints to people living in the south will help the North grow stronger. We invite you to visit the North³ website and share your views. We care what you think and want to learn more from you about our North.

www.ookpik.org/north3

At the North³ website, you will have the chance to answer three questions:

- 1) Why are my community and its people special?
- 2) What do regions of the circumpolar world share in common, and how is my region like northern regions in other countries?
- 3) What can be done to improve the lives and environment of northern residents in my community and elsewhere?

A selection of submissions from around the circumpolar world will be published, allowing all of us to learn more about our North.

The North is a special part of the world. Nowhere else can be found its magnificent beauty, its ecology, its vast spaces, its unique cultures and people.

The North is also faced with important challenges, such as climate change and natural resource development. Cold and distance may also create difficulties in providing essential services, such as health care and education.

The more we know about the people and communities of the North, the better we can face these challenges.

Help others learn about you and your community at

www.ookpik.org/north3

Canada